

Grade 6 Literature

In February, sixth graders began reading an exciting new book called El Deafo by Cece Bell. This novel unit is the first graphic novel this class has ever done. Most people overlook graphic novels and only view them as longer comic books. However, the sixth grade is learning that graphic novels contain everything a typical novel contains- character development, plot development, and themes. This particular graphic novel focuses on the theme of differences and how our differences can really be our very own superpowers. As you can see, the students are hooked!
