

Grade 7 Literature

During January, Grade 7 worked on making life size character biographies while learning about characterization. Seventh graders worked in groups to make life size representations of three characters from the novel, Messenger by Lois Lowry. Each group also had to provide indirect and direct characterization examples for their character. The students learned a lot about characterization through this activity but even more about teamwork!

